Standard Frontier Cancellation Cost

For most basic tickets, Frontier typically charges:

-  Around $99 cancellation fee per passenger (per direction)
-  Remaining value is given as travel credit (not cash refund)
-  No refund if cancellation rules are not met

So, if you cancel a standard fare, you usually don't lose everything—but you do lose a portion as a fee.

When You Can Cancel for Free

You may avoid cancellation fees if:

-  You cancel within 24 hours of booking
-  Your flight is scheduled 7+ days away
-  You purchased a bundle fare (Economy, Premium, or Business bundle)

In these cases, you may receive a full refund or no cancellation penalty.

What Happens After You Cancel?

When you cancel a non-refundable ticket, Frontier usually:

-  Deducts cancellation fee (around $99)
-  Issues remaining balance as travel credit
-  Credit is valid for future travel (time-limited depending on fare rules)

So instead of losing everything, you often keep partial value for later use.

No-Show vs Cancel (Important Difference)

- ❌ No-show (don't cancel): You may lose full ticket value
- ✔️ Cancel in advance: You keep remaining value minus fee

That's why it's always better to cancel early instead of missing the flight.
