Standard credit or debit card payments are accepted. This method is straightforward and ideal for those who prefer to preserve their points for future use.
- 3. Points + Cash Payment:
Chase allows a flexible combination of points and cash. This can help you stretch your points further while reducing out-of-pocket expenses.

How to Use Points for Chase Travel Flights

Using your Chase Ultimate Rewards points is one of the most rewarding ways to book flights. Here's how it works:

1. Log in to Chase Travel Portal: Access the portal via your Chase account.
2. Search for Flights: Enter your travel details and select the flight you want.
3. Select Payment Option: Choose "Pay with Points" to see how many points are required.
4. Complete the Booking: Confirm your flight and points redemption.

Tips to maximize points:

- Flights booked with points often offer better value during sales or when combined with Chase's promotional offers.
- Chase Sapphire Preferred or Reserve cardholders get bonus value per point when booking through the Chase Travel portal.

Cash Payments for Chase Travel Flights

Cash payments are ideal if you prefer not to spend your points. Chase accepts most major credit and debit cards. Paying with cash also provides:

- Flexibility: You can take advantage of travel deals without worrying about point balances.
- Eligibility for Rewards: Some cash bookings still earn Ultimate Rewards points, adding value to future trips.

When choosing cash as a payment option, it's often helpful to speak with a Live Agent at  ||+1→888→483→9719 to confirm booking details and ensure there are no hidden fees.

Mixing Points and Cash: The Best of Both Worlds

Chase Travel offers a "points + cash" option, which is ideal if:

- You don't have enough points for a full redemption.
- You want to reserve points for future travel.
- You want to reduce your out-of-pocket cost while still using rewards.

Example: If a flight costs $500 and you have points worth $300, you can pay $300 with points and the remaining $200 in cash.
